

Grace Moore, 21 Others Die In Air Crash In Copenhagen

By LASSE LEMKOW
Copenhagen, Jan. 27 (AP)—Royal Dutch Airlines officials hastened today to Copenhagen to investigate a disastrous plane crash which yesterday claimed the lives of American Soprano Grace Moore, Sweden's Prince Gustaf Adolf and 20 other persons.

Officials of the line issued a communique at The Hague indicating belief that the crash might have been caused by mechanical failure, but added that the reason might be hard to ascertain, so completely was the plane destroyed.

Miss Moore, who began her singing career in a Tennessee choir and won fame as a star in musical comedy, the opera and the movies, was the only American in the ill-fated plane.

Enroute To Concert
The singer had just completed a concert engagement in Copenhagen and was enroute to another in Sweden.

Valentin Parera, husband of the 45-year-old soprano, heard the news of her death at Mougins, France, where he was convalescing from an illness.

The DC-3 transport plane, with 16 passengers and a crew of six aboard, crashed on the airstrip just after taking off for Stockholm. The liner immediately broke into flames and blazed so fiercely there was no chance for anyone to escape.

Airport officials said the bodies of all those aboard were so charred and mutilated they were virtually unrecognizable.

Sweden went into national mourning today for Prince Gustaf Adolf, popular grandson of King Gustaf, who met death while going home from a hunting trip to Holland, where he was a guest of Prince Bernhard, husband of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands.

Prince Headed Scouts
The 40-year-old heir to the Swedish throne had been active in the civic affairs of his country, serving as head of the Boy Scout movement and supervisor of a national health program. He was considered one of the best horsemen in Sweden and was known to his people as "the Rider Prince."

As a result of Gustaf Adolf's death, his nine-month-old son, Karl (Please Turn to Page 7)

ROBERT PETERS, BENDERSVILLE PLUMBER, DIES

Robert D. Peters, 60, prominent Bendersville plumber, and a fruit grower, died at his home in Bendersville Sunday morning at 11:15 o'clock from a pulmonary embolism. He submitted to an operation several weeks ago and suffered a relapse about a week ago.

He was a native of Adams county, a son of the late Isaac and Catherine (Routson) Peters. He learned the plumbing trade in Harrisburg and returned to the county 27 years ago to take up practice in that field.

Mr. Peters was a member of the Bendersville Lutheran church, Montana Lodge 653, Bendersville, of the IOOF, and the Bendersville Fire company.

Surviving are his widow, the former Edna Taylor; one son, Donald, at home; two sisters, Miss Ella Peters and Mrs. Emma Biddle, both of Gettysburg, and one brother, George, Bendersville.

Funeral service Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bendersville Lutheran church conducted by the Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble. Interment in the Bendersville cemetery. Friends may call at the late home Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Mitinger Returns From Conference

H. C. Mitinger has returned to Oak Ridge after attending the conference of the Roadside Business and Property Owner's group held at the Palmer House in Chicago last week.

The voluntary program of roadside control now being developed through the Pennsylvania Scenic Area Committee of which Mitinger is field secretary has attracted national attention and is now being adopted in many states, where restrictive legislation has been suggested and found undesirable.

NEED FIREMEN TUESDAY

All members of the fire company were urged today by Chief James A. Aumen, to meet at the fire engine house Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock to aid in repacking and arranging hose on the fire trucks. Thirteen hundred feet of new hose have been secured and it will be used to replace older hose now on the trucks.

DRIVER CHARGED

Darrel Heinselman, Haverton, Delaware county, has been charged before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder, by state police with operating on the left side of the highway. A ten day notice has been sent.

ELLIS WAGAMAN CONVICTED BY QUICK VERDICT

A jury in the Adams County Court of Common Pleas deliberated only ten minutes this morning before bringing in a verdict of guilty in the case of the Commonwealth against Ellis Wagaman, Fayetteville R. D., tried before a jury of six men and four women on a morals charge, preferred by Margaret Barnes, 17, Hamiltonban township.

The defendant was represented by Attorney Robert Geigley, appointed by the court when Wagaman said he had no attorney. Jurors who heard the case and returned the verdict at 11:02 a. m., were Margaret Spangler, Abbottstown R. D.; William Smith, Aspers R. D.; Mrs. Martha Lower, Biglerville R. 2; William Kane, Arendtsville; Charles E. Alwine, New Oxford; Frank McCadden, McSherrystown; Mrs. Hilda V. Britcher, Gettysburg; Mrs. Helen DeTar, New Oxford; Edward Cole, Biglerville R. 2; Herbert A. Shearer, York Springs R. D.; Arlington Spangler, McSherrystown, and Charles Peters, Aspers.

At the opening of court at 9:30 this morning, prospective petit jurors were instructed by the court. Two of the panel of 48 were excused, Paul Kane, Orrtanna R. 2, and John Marker, Littlestown.

Try Larceny Case

The defense in the case of Paul S. Cartwright, Biglerville R. 1, charged with larceny of a fur coat owned by Mary Catherine Berger and a topcoat belonging to Bertram Larkin, both of Gettysburg, at the West Gettysburg inn on New Year's Eve, sought to show that both coats were taken by mistake, in the second case to go on trial.

Jack Fitzhugh, Biglerville R. D., who said he was with Cartwright at the inn, testified that both he and the defendant had been drinking in several places before arriving at the inn.

Prosecution witnesses included Mr. Larkin, Clark W. Staiyer, borough police officer and special deputy sheriff, Mrs. Hazel Vladick, waitress at the inn, and Jesse Kline, proprietor.

Larkin said he and Miss Berger went to the inn shortly before midnight and occupied a table, placing their coats over the back of a nearby chair. The coats were taken, witnesses said, while Miss Berger and Larkin were away from the table later.

Staiyer testified that he saw Fitzhugh on the porch of the inn with Miss Berger's coat. He said Fitzhugh handed the coat to him.

SCOUT MOVIE WILL FEATURE TWO-DAY SHOW

A motion picture, "Scout Trail to Citizenship," released by the National Council Boy Scouts of America, will feature the opening of the 1947 Merit Badge show to be held Friday and Saturday nights, February 7 and 8, under the auspices of the York-Adams Area Council, which directs the movement in both counties, in the White Rose arena, East Market street, York. Chairman George Brown announced that initial reports on the sale of admission tickets indicate that a capacity crowd is expected to attend this first of its type event by the Boy Scouts in this region.

The film depicts the full story of a boy in Scouting from the age of 9 years as a Cub Scout, a Boy Scout at 12 years, a Senior Scout at 15 years, and as a scoutmaster which position he attains when he becomes 21 years of age. Character building and citizenship training form the basis of the picture.

SOFT MUSIC AT FIRST NATIONAL

Those going to make deposits or transact other business at the First National bank here this morning found that soft music entertained them while they waited their turns.

The music came from a sound system installed in the bank during the last several weeks and which was inaugurated as a regular service this morning.

Three sound outlets are imbedded in the ceiling above the lobby, two others are located over the central portion of the main room and another is in the bookkeeping room. As a result of the sound system the music seems to permeate the entire building without having an apparent source.

A record player and public address system are located in the bookkeeping room and the records are placed on the machine to provide a half hour program which runs automatically after it is started. At present the music is provided every hour for a half hour and for an entire hour at noontime.

Classical, semi-classical and light opera numbers are played. Edmund W. Thomas, president of the bank, said that the program at present is still "in the trial and error" stage and will be changed if experience shows that other hours would be more desirable.

M. W. NEWMAN DIES SUNDAY IN CHAMBERSBURG

Maurice W. Newman, 48, well-known fruitgrower and lodge member, who resided along the Lincoln highway about three miles west of Cash-town, died Sunday morning at 2:45 o'clock in the Chambersburg hospital where he had been admitted Saturday evening about 7:30 o'clock in a serious condition. A complication of diseases caused death.

Mr. Newman was a native of Adams county and was a son of the late Harvey W. and Mary Alice (Mohr) Newman. He was a farmer and fruitgrower and was a member of Flohr's Lutheran church.

He also belonged to Good Samaritan lodge No. 336 of the Free and Accepted Order of Masons of Gettysburg; the Good Samaritan chapter No. 266, the Gettysburg Commandery No. 79, the Shrine of Harrisburg, the Harrisburg Consistory and the Adams County Shrine club.

Was World War II Vet

Mr. Newman served in the army for about eight months during World War II. Most of his service was in Tennessee.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Paul K. Rebert, Orrtanna R. 1; and a half-brother, Clark L. Petters, Gardners R. 2.

Funeral services from the Bender funeral home on Carlisle street Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock with his pastor, the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, officiating. Interment in Flohr's cemetery.

Friends may call Tuesday evening after 7 o'clock at the funeral home.

MISS BENNER IS BRIDE SATURDAY OF G. C. GLADHILL

At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Miss Mary E. Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton Benner, Baltimore road, was united in marriage with George C. Gladhill, son of Roy D. Gladhill, Gettysburg, R. 5, in a double-ring ceremony performed by the bride's uncle, Dr. Earl S. Rudisill, at his home, 116 Rolling Road, Bala-Cynwyd, Pa.

The bride wore a street length dress of white wool flannel, white feather hat and black accessories. She carried a white Bible to which was attached an orchid. Her only jewelry, a double strand of pearls, was a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Esther M. Geiselman, Gettysburg, the bride's only attendant, wore a street-length dress of light blue wool with black accessories and had a corsage of red rosebuds.

The groom had as his best man, Theron S. Dayhoff, Littlestown. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the Cottage Tea Room, Bryn Mawr.

Mrs. Gladhill is a graduate of Gettysburg high school and until recently was employed as secretary to the treasurer of the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville.

Mr. Gladhill attended Gettysburg high school and is now employed by the Western Union Telegraph company.

Following a honeymoon to an unannounced destination, the couple will reside in Hagerstown.

VETERANS BUY NEW POST HOME

The Emmitsburg Veterans of Foreign Wars post purchased the Green Parrot Tea room property Saturday for $13,000 with Attorney Storm, legal advisor for the post, in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Leona B. McNair, owner of the establishment, turned the building over to the post which Saturday afternoon moved its equipment to the new home.

Nearly all of the equipment necessary to operate the home has already been secured by the post, officials of the organization said today, and it is expected that repairs and rearrangements to the building will be completed within a few weeks.

The first floor of the building, which formerly housed the tea room, will be used as the post quarters and the two apartments in the upper floors of the building will be continued as apartments. Commander Charles Rowe of the Emmitsburg post today urged all discharged veterans of overseas service to join the organization. The post will be ready to open about March 1.

HELD FOR ASSAULT

James Pittenturf, Baltimore street, has posted $500 bail to appear for a hearing this evening at 7:30 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder on a charge of assault and battery brought against Pittenturf by Theodore Plus Thomas, Carlisle street, allegedly as a result of an altercation Thursday night in the kitchen of Mitchell's restaurant.

Weather Nice But Surprising

From snow flurries and zero temperatures to spring-like weather in less than a week is the strange phenomena which has nature and residents of Gettysburg and Adams county guessing.

The week-end was more like late March or April than the latter part of January, and the weatherman says that this section is destined to have a continuance of very mild temperatures for at least today and tomorrow.

Signs of "spring" have been numerous. One Gettysburg resident reported today seeing mosquitoes buzzing over a small puddle of water in his backyard. Bees have been fooled by the warmth into coming forth into the sunshine. The sap is running in some trees. Forsythia buds are almost ready to pop. Pussy willows are out.

It will be sunny and mild today, the forecast says, and fair and somewhat warmer tonight. Tuesday will be cloudy, but mild, with some rain.

A heavy rain Sunday sent the creeks up, and broke up most of the ice in the streams.

FRUIT GROWERS APPROVE PENNY TAX ON APPLES

Adams county's fruit growers association, the largest such county organization in the state, Saturday afternoon at Biglerville voted unanimously to urge passage of a legislative bill taxing each bushel of apples sold one cent for advertising and research purposes.

To implement their motion the growers then signed petitions urging such action by the legislature. The petitions, containing the signature of the individuals and the number of acres they grow will be forwarded to the state's lawmakers.

John Peters, of the state horticultural society committee named to seek passage of the measure, explained the purposes behind the move and pointed out that Adams county's approval of the proposal was vital because the county ordinarily produces twice as many apples as any other county in the state.

Voluntary Program

Pennsylvania apple growers have voluntarily carried out advertising programs of their fruit for the past decade, Peters told the group, adding that "growers in every other state, and important producing areas of the country have found advertising and sales promotion to be profitable and most important."

"In the Northwest, Washington growers found voluntary methods inadequate and passed legislation raising $50,000 per year. Virginia, feeling the same inadequacy of voluntary collections, has recently passed an apple tax law which proposes a fund of $80,000 a year to advertise Virginia apples. The West Virginia Horticultural Association is sponsoring legislation to raise funds for advertising its apples and (Please turn to Page 2)

Littlestown UNION SERVICE WELL ATTENDED

A capacity congregation attended the weekly Sunday evening community vespers service in Centenary Methodist church. The service was conducted by the host pastor, Rev. Robert H. Sheehan. The invocation was given by Rev. Kenneth D. James pastor of St. John's Lutheran church. Responsive reading was led by Rev. Charles B. Rebert, secretary of the Littlestown ministerium. Prayer was offered by Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor of Christ Reformed church. Scripture (I Cor. 3rd chapter) was read by Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. George L. Maitland, Sr., sang a baritone solo, accompanied by the choir.

Soroptimist Club Will Initiate Seven

Seven new members will be initiated by the Soroptimist club at a formal dinner at Hotel Gettysburg Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Frederic E. Greist will serve as toastmaster. Mrs. Robert H. Derck will be the guest soloist. The initiation will be conducted by Mrs. Charles T. Ziegler, membership chairman. Talks are scheduled by Mrs. George Eberhart, Mrs. Harvey Raffensperger and Mrs. Henrietta Blocher, all past presidents of the club.

Mrs. Blocher is in charge of reservations. Guests are expected from a number of nearby Soroptimist clubs.

Good Evening
It's spring in January—for a while at least.

RAFFENSPERGER NEW HEAD OF FRUIT GROWERS

Harvey Raffensperger, Arendtsville orchard owner, was elected president of the Adams County Fruit Growers Association Saturday afternoon to succeed three-times president Robert C. Lott, Aspers R. 1.

Raffensperger had been president of the society previously, about seven years ago.

J. Willis Beidler, Biglerville, was elected vice president and Frederic E. Griest, Jr., Bendersville, was named as secretary-treasurer.

Named as members of a State College Relationships committee by outgoing President Lott were Harold Steiner, Flora Daie, for a six year term; Harvey Raffensperger for four years and William M. Lott, Gardners R. D., two years.

360 Growers Present

More than 360 growers, their employees and members of their families attended the session held during the morning at the Biglerville auditorium and in the afternoon at the C. H. Musselman company cafeteria. The number was the largest in the history of the organization.

Talks on the need for better selling practices and the need for foreign trade were presented by Dr. A. S. Beshore, Harrisburg, assistant director of the Production and Marketing Administration in the state, and Henry W. Miller, Paw Paw, W. Va., fruit grower and member of the Farm Trade council of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and of the U. S.-Canadian Apple committee.

"Adams county has quality fruit the equal of any in the world, but we seem to hide our light under the bushel instead of letting the whole world know about it," Beshore said.

"As an example take the India River oranges in Florida. They are known for quality throughout the world, known as the best of the Florida oranges, not only because (Please Turn to Page 2)

FATHER, SON DIE IN PLANE CRASH SUNDAY

Flying home from a vacation in Florida, a father and son were killed Sunday when their lightweight passenger plane crashed in a pasture near Taneytown, during a heavy rainstorm.

State police removed the bodies from the wreckage of the demolished plane. The dead are: Alfred E. Bates, 54, of New Hampton, N. Y.

William Henry Bates, 19. Police were told the plane barely missed striking a barn before plunging into the ground.

No Explosion Of Fire

The occupants apparently were killed instantly, and both bodies were badly mangled, but no explosion or fire followed the impact, according to police.

Members of the family said the father and son left from Middletown, N. Y., ten days ago for Sarasota, Fla. They stopped at Rocky Mount, N. C., and then continued on to the Florida city.

The last message the family received from them was from Sarasota and apparently they were flying north on their way home Sunday.

Pilot Not Known

According to members of the family, the father is a licensed pilot and the son has been studying for some time to obtain a license. It was not known who was at the controls of the plane when it crashed.

Mr. Bates and his son operated celery farming and farm machinery business together at New Hampton.

The plane, apparently lost and off its course, crashed shortly before noon on the farm of Charles E. Hockensmith, about a mile and a half north of Taneytown.

Southerly Course

John Hockensmith, 50, who had been feeding stock on his father's farm, sighted the plane only a few moments before it crashed. It was flying low as if seeking to make an emergency landing and narrowly escaped crashing into the barn.

Rain was falling heavily at the time.

Police were told the plane was flying in a southeasterly direction, confirming their belief it was off its course, since the victims presumably had been headed north for their New York home.

Dug Hole In Ground

The plane fell immediately after passing over the barn. Neighbors three quarters of a mile away reported hearing the crash.

State police reported there was a (Please Turn to Page 2)

GIRL DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

Gloria E. Myers, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon S. Myers, Hanover, died this morning at 11:20 in the Hanover hospital of injuries suffered Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the jeep she was operating and a sedan driven by Wesley C. Ingram, Catonsville, Md., smashed head-on on the Hanover-Littlestown road, 2.4 miles east of Littlestown.

Miss Myers suffered a fractured skull, crushed chest and internal injuries. Lester G. Sell, York county coroner, has not as yet set a date for the inquest.

Four others were injured in the crash.

Wesley Ingram suffered chin lacerations and other injuries. Mary Myers, 14, a sister of Gloria, suffered lacerations of the scalp. Her mother, Mrs. Pauline Myers, 36, suffered lacerations of the hands and contusions of the leg and a brother, Richard, 3, suffered lacerations of the forehead. Mrs. Myers and Richard were treated at the Hanover hospital and discharged. The three others are patients at the hospital where they were taken by the Littlestown ambulance.

Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at $1,000. No details were yet available concerning how the accident happened, with State Policeman Frank Yercavage continuing his investigation into the case.

The crash was one of two over the week-end. On Saturday cars of Harvey A. Wentz, 74, Hanover R. 2, and Maurice C. Resh, 49, Hanover R. 2 collided three miles south of Hanover on Route 94 at 4:30 p. m. Wentz suffered bruises of the right side. Damage was estimated at a total of $400. The crash happened, police say, as Wentz attempted a left turn. The investigation is being continued.

FBI JOINS HUNT FOR KIDNAPPERS

The widespread manhunt for the four men who abducted a Frederick taxicab driver and released him here early Saturday morning was intensified today by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who declined to comment on progress of the search when reached by the Associated Press in Philadelphia.

Local police said they had no further information on the matter which they said had been turned over entirely to the FBI.

Whether the four were the same men who escaped early Saturday morning from the Frederick jail was still uncertain although officials were inclined to believe they were the four. The car of Lloyd A. Durboraw, 101 Springs avenue, which was stolen Saturday morning was still not located.

The kidnapping of the Frederick cab driver was discovered Saturday morning after the driver freed himself from some of the ropes with which four men had bound him and left him trussed in the rear seat of his cab behind the Gettysburg furniture factory.

Frederick Sheriff Guy Anders said the suspected quartet sawed two bars out of a window in a basement cell block sometime during Friday night. He identified them as: Harry Ball, 34, of Frederick, returned recently from Cambridge, Ohio, where he was arrested on a Frederick county charge of embezzlement and had been involved in an attempted jail break; Lloyd Roger Mauk, 24, and James Melvin Hite, 25, both of Cumberland, Md., awaiting grand jury action on a charge of stealing $1,300 worth of liquor from a store at nearby Ridgeville, and John H. Billingsley, 50, of Brunswick, Md., awaiting grand jury action on a charge of forging checks at Brunswick.

ELECT TEACHER AT BIGLERVILLE

Robert H. Martin, Lancaster, has been elected instructor in shop work at Biglerville high school, succeeding Edgar P. Benner, who has accepted a position as a member of the teaching staff of Penn State college.

Mr. Martin, during his high school training, completed a course of study for the vocational shops of Lancaster senior high school. He was graduated from Millersville State Teachers' college and served for six years with the armed forces. While in service he was in charge of maintenance and administration of equipment connected with the 25th Weather Region Army Air Forces.

Previous to his army service he held a civilian position as draftsman. He reported for duty at Biglerville today. His wife and 18-month-old child will remain in Lancaster until he can make arrangements for living quarters in Biglerville.

Miss Arelen Johnson, Liverpool, a student at Shippensburg State Teachers' college, today took over the schedule in the English department of the Biglerville schools. Homer Powell, also a student at Shippensburg, has concluded his student teaching at Biglerville and has resumed his studies at the college.

Social Happenings

Phone Gettysburg 640 or Biglerville 8

The first state convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's clubs since the spring of 1944 will be held May 6, 7 and 8 at Buck Hill Falls instead of in July as previously scheduled. It was decided at a quarterly meeting of the Federation board held at the Penn Harris hotel, Harrisburg, last week. The convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs will be held June 23 through 29 in New York city.

Mrs. Paul Koenig, state president, who presided, stated in a summary of the work done during the year that "The Youth Conservation project under Mrs. R. S. Saby, of Gettysburg, leads that in every other state." Mrs. Saby, who is vice president of the South Central district of the Federation, was in attendance at the meeting of the board last week.

Miss Coetta Bream, a student at Rider college, Trenton, N. J., spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin U. Bream, North Stratton street. Miss Bream was recently pledged to Sigma Iota Chi, national social sorority.

Mrs. Alice Schlosser, Shepherdstown, spent the week-end with her son-in-law, Clarence Shindedecker, West Middle street.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Jones, West Broadway, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Rice, Jr., Biglerville, and Mr. and Mrs. David Winebrenner, New Oxford, entertained at the Hanover Country club Saturday evening at a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Mary Howard, New York city, and Donald McCurdy Swope, West Broadway, whose marriage will take place in the near future.

The Woman's League of Gettysburg college will meet Tuesday afternoon, February 4, in the social rooms of Christ Lutheran church. The hostess committee includes: Mrs. Richard A. Brown, Mrs. E. A. Crouse, Miss Loretta Deatrick, Mrs. L. S. Long, Mrs. Herbert Hamme, Mrs. William Kuhn, Mrs. George R. Miller, Mrs. H. C. Michael, Mrs. Dwight F. Putman and Mrs. J. P. Rhoads.

James Scott Cairns, Mrs. J. P. Cairns and Miss Anna Cairns, Springs avenue, have returned from New York city where Mr. Cairns attended the National Furniture show.

Mrs. Paul Little entertained members of the Tuesday Evening Bridge club last Friday evening at her home on Steinwehr avenue. The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Lawrence E. Oyler, Baltimore street.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Eberhart, Hotel Eberhart apartments, have returned after spending a week in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cool, Baltimore road, had as week-end guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Mullen and William Duffy, Philadelphia. Mrs. Mullen is spending a few weeks with her parents.

Mrs. William I. Shields and daughter, Nancy, William W. Shields and Mrs. Groft spent the week-end in Altoona with Mrs. Shields' father, David C. Plank. Mr. Plank is 92 years of age.

The Wednesday Evening Bridge club will meet this week with Miss Myrtle Stauffer, East Middle street.

OBSERVE 56TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Trostle, Knoxlyn, are quietly observing their 56th wedding anniversary at their home today.

The couple was united in marriage in the Reformed parsonage here January 27, 1891, by the Rev. Mr. Barkley. Mr. Trostle told a Times reporter today that the weather on that day was very similar to that of today, it being a very mild day. He and his bride-to-be, Emma Florence Micklely, drove by horse and buggy from Fairfield to Gettysburg for the ceremony.

The couple, both of whom enjoy excellent health, still operate their farm at Knoxlyn where they have resided for 53 years of their 56 years of married life.

They have four sons, Lawrence, of Virginia; John, Highland township; Harry, Jr., Highland township, and Allen, at home. There are nine grandchildren, four boys of whom served in the army.

On February 10 Mr. Trostle will observe his 84th birthday anniversary. Mrs. Trostle will observe her 79th anniversary next June.

The Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., was established in 1800.

Weddings

Shrader-Spangler

William Elmer Shrader, Jr., New Oxford R. 1 shoe worker and a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Elmer Shrader, Sr., and Mary Louise Spangler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Edward Spangler, McSherrytown, were married Saturday at McSherrytown by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick F. McGee according to a return made to the office of the county clerk of courts.

Dixon-Beamer

The marriage of Miss Ethel Marie Beamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Beamer, of Benderville, to Herman William Dixon, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman W. Dixon, of Gardners, was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Methodist church at Benderville. The double ring ceremony of the church was used by the pastor, the Rev. George W. Harrison.

The bride had as her maid-of-honor and only attendant Miss Martha Reeve, of Aspers. Gerald Heller, of Biglerville, served as best man.

The traditional wedding marches were played by Mrs. Harrison.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left on a wedding trip of unannounced destination. Upon their return they will be at home in Benderville.

The bride has been employed at the Naval depot at Mechanicsburg. The bridegroom, who was graduated from Biglerville high school in 1945, is associated with his father in farming.

they are advertised throughout the length and breadth of the land but also because the growers are careful that none of their off grade oranges get out to the public.

"Adams county should do the same—it should see that only its quality apples are sold on the open market—and that the apples are advertised.

"You grow off-grade apples, about as many as any one else, and the India River orange growers grow just about as many off-grade oranges as anyone else. But you can take a tip from them and sell only quality fruit on the open market.

"And then you miss one opportunity to really publicize apples. At the farm show in Harrisburg I found that the state's best growers were selling their prize beets at premium prizes to restaurants and processors. I saw big advertisements in the paper stating that this champion beef would be for sale at certain places and I went there and saw lines of people just waiting for the chance to buy a steak from a champion beef—and at a higher price than ordinary meat.

Boosted Potatoes

"I went to the farm show and there the Pennsylvania Potato growers had potatoes—hot, steaming and delicious—on sale at the farm show. They sold their best potatoes and no one who ate one of those potatoes at the farm show could remain unaware that Pennsylvania grows potatoes the equal of any in the world.

"Then I went to look at the apples. You know Adams county had a beautiful display of apples. It won first prize. I saw about 40 other Adams county entries that had won prizes in apple contests. But when my mouth watered for a delicious apple to eat I had to go down to a store and buy a Washington state apple.

"Now why wasn't some store advertising that it had for sale the champion apples in Pennsylvania and why were no apples for sale at the farm show? It would be the best advertisement the industry could have."

Need Foreign Trade

Mr. Miller told the growers that "the United States can survive but it cannot be prosperous without foreign trade. There is too general a feeling that we are self sufficient. But the shortage of sugar and other imported commodities should by now have demonstrated that we are not.

"The property of World War II may have lulled us into a sense of security, but we are again producing more fruits and farm products than the U. S. is willing to use. We can do one of two things, either cut down our production or export." The fruit growers voted resolutions expressing appreciation of the work of Harold Steiner for the fruit industry during the past year, praising the cooperation of the canners of the community and recommending that even more growers become members of the national apple, peach and cherry organizations.

M. T. Hartman, county farm agent, introduced J. O. Pepper and L. O. Weaver, extension specialist who outlined spray programs for the coming year at the morning sessions.

Ferry, pastor, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. J. Harold Little, Interment in Mummert's Meeting House cemetery, near East Berlin.

Wilson Hartman

Wilson Hartman, 82, Gettysburg R. 4, formerly of Pine Run, Adams county, died Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. He was a son of the late Jacob C. and Kathryn Miller Hartman and is survived by one brother, J. R. Hartman, Bridgeton, N. J. He was a member of the Reformed church at Abbottstown.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the W. A. Feiser funeral home, Carlisle street, Hanover. The Rev. Archie Rohrbach, New Oxford, officiated. Burial was in Mt. Olive cemetery, Abbottstown.

Bury C. A. Hartman

Funeral services for Clement A. Hartman, 82, Cashtown, who died last Thursday morning at the Warner hospital from injuries received when struck by a car Wednesday evening, were held Saturday afternoon from Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church, Cashtown, conducted by the Rev. John Ehrhart. Interment in Flor's cemetery.

The pallbearers were James Kepner, Kenneth Kuhn, Donald Kuhn, John Sharrah, John Linn and Howard Sharrah.

Roswell E. Keith

Roswell Emanuel Keith, 90, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Flora Hinzman, York Springs R. 2, Huntingdon township, Saturday afternoon at 4:40 o'clock from a complication of diseases. He moved to the home of his daughter from West Virginia about three months ago.

Mr. Keith was a member of the Baptist church at Arnoldsburg, W. Va., and a member of the Odd Fellows lodge at Minnora, W. Va.

hole a foot and a half deep at the point where the craft first struck. The plane continued a short distance and turned over on its back.

C. Edgar Hockensmith, a brother of John, said most parts of the craft remained together, but "it was hard to tell it was an airplane."

Studded With Stones The pasture where the plane crashed formerly was an orchard and several apple trees remain. The field is studded with stones.

The Hockensmiths notified State police and three police vehicles were sent to the scene.

Sergt. Joseph K. Cushwa and Troopers Richard E. Stallings, Glenn B. Markle and John M. Morgan, the policemen, were assisted by civilians and medical authorities in removing the bodies.

Dr. James T. Marsh, medical examiner for Carroll county, pronounced the victims dead at the scene. The bodies were taken to a funeral home at Taneytown.

Police thought possibly the plane might have landed earlier Sunday at the Taneytown airport, but airport officials said no takeoffs were allowed there Sunday because of weather conditions.

the Maryland Horticultural Association this past month has gone on record favoring an apple tax," Peters told the group.

May Net $80,000 The proposed bill would provide, Peters said, for "a Pennsylvania State Apple board made up of seven Pennsylvania apple growers serving without pay appointed by the governor on recommendation of the Horticultural society to administer the law.

"One cent tax per bushel will be imposed on all apples sold by the growers. This tax is to be collected by the State Department of Revenue and reserved entirely for use by the board. The board shall spend its funds for any campaigns of education, advertising, publicity, sales promotion and research which it deems advisable to promote sales and consumption of apples."

Peters added that the proposal would not do away with the Appalachian Apple institute program. Virginia, he said is planning to make outright grants from its tax money to Appalachian Apple.

The proposal if passed would raise about $80,000 a year in

Died: On Thursday, at the Theological Seminary, Mr. William A. Renshaw, son of James Renshaw, Esq., of Littlestown, Adams county. On Friday, at the Theological Seminary, Mr. William Beard, of Middlebrook, Va., a member of the junior class of Pa. college, in the 25th year of his age.

Near Liberty, Md., on the 16th inst., Mr. Charles G. Simpson, late a student of Pennsylvania college, aged about 18 years.

Ireland: The condition of this distressed country appears not to be improved at all. Day after day the distress continues to increase, and famine is doing the work of death in various parts of the country. Immense numbers of poor half-starved creatures find their way across the channel, and beg, and exist as best they can by appeals to the feelings of the inhabitants in the great towns of England. There is also great suffering in the highlands and islands of Scotland, and the suffering population is estimated at 100,000.

Great Fire in Boston: A dreadful fire broke out in Boston. It commenced in the bowling saloon attached to the Neptune House, and owing to a strong westerly wind, one of the most extensive conflagrations ensued which has been known there for many years. About seventy families were rendered houseless.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Japanese Embassy: Congress has appropriated $50,000 for the entertainment of the Japanese embassy, which recently arrived at San Francisco. The embassy in question is the most important one that has ever been sent to this country. At the head of it is the prime minister, and there are also several members of the Mikado's cabinet. The whole party numbers one hundred and five persons. Among them are twenty-three youths who come as students, and five young women who are to be sent to some seminary. The official rank of the men of the embassy give it an importance beyond that of any former party of Japanese that have visited America and Europe. The Mikado, who seems to have become thoroughly imbued with the American spirit of progress, sends this deputation, with special instructions indicating this spirit, and the members themselves are said to be thoroughly progressive. The fact is, Japan is sure to become, to a large extent, Americanized, and the visit of this new body of enlightened men, on a mission to study our institutions, social and political, is destined to hasten the completion of the work.

Today's Talk

NOT FOR SALE

The world is full of bargainers but there are many things that are not for sale at any price. I have a beautiful Whistler print that I purchased many years ago. A man heard that I had it and came to see me, hoping to buy it. I told him at once to buy it was not for sale. But he persisted, offered me far more than it cost, and could not understand why I would not sell. "But I offer you twice as much as you paid for it," he said. It took me a long while to convince him that I would not sell it at any price—for the love that I had for it was not for sale.

There is a certain sadness that comes over me when I see a home for sale. Not the speculative kind, but the home that looks as though it had been lived in for a long time—love centered within it, children born there and gone out perhaps into the world to build a home of their own—happiness, sorrow as well, experienced, and all those many things that make a home endeared.

The little baby things, that a mother sets aside, to save and treasure, never could be for sale. You will recall that phrase in the Bible where it is written that "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." No one has ever been able to put a price upon a good name—and such a one is not for sale, though there are instances where it has been sold. Rarely, however. And then only for "a mess of pottage."

Spiritual power is not for sale, nor is the appreciation that one has for beauty, character, and friends. These are beyond price. They are the essentials that go to make up happiness, and even those who may live in poverty, may still not be poor, but rich in these intangible possessions. Love is a free gift to us all!

I believe it was the poet Lowell who said we were taxed for the very ground that we finally lie in—but we are not taxed for innumerable sights of beauty—gardens, landscapes, the heavens at night, sunrises and sunsets, or for masterpieces of art in our great galleries and public buildings. There are more things free in this world than we are ever able to buy with money.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Power Of Pain."

DRIVER'S LICENSE

"This is your license to drive," said he.

Then turned to the next in line; And I had the right once more to be

At the wheel of that car of mine.

The color of hair had changed to gray.
From brown in the three years sped;

But I thought as I carried my card away
Of the more that he might have said.

"Here's proof that your state believes that you
Are a man who will drive with care;
That never a reckless act you'll do
On a crowded thoroughfare.

"This license to drive is on you bestowed
As one that your state can trust
By night and by day, to be fit for the road.
So live to that faith you must."

The Wade Pension: We notice by the Congressional Globe, that Mr. Speer, from the Committee on Pensions in the House, on the 18th inst., reported a bill granting a pension to Mrs. Mary Wade, of Gettysburg, which passed the House the same day. It directs the Secretary of the Interior to "place upon the pension-roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary Wade, of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, the mother of Jenny Wade, who was killed while baking bread for Union soldiers, and to pay her a pension at the rate of eight dollars per month, from July 3, 1863, the date of her said daughter's death, to continue during the widowhood of the said Mary Wade, she having been dependent for support on her said daughter."

FORCED BLOOMS GIVE PRE-VIEW OF SPRINGTIME

Just about now winter is losing its appeal for most gardeners, who are eager to get a glimpse of spring. The sight of a few fresh blossoms on branches cut from trees and shrubs, and forced into bloom indoors, will thrill even the most ardent winter enthusiasts.

Besides pussy willows and forsythia, which are the earliest and quickest to force, there are many other flowering trees and shrubs that lend themselves to this purpose, says Erma W. Cass, writing in the New York Herald-Tribune. For instance, most of the fruit trees, such as apple, peach, pear, plum, apricot, cherry and crabapple, as well as the ornamental flowering kinds, will develop their lovely blossoms indoors with a little care.

Such shrubs as witch hazel, mock orange, magnolia, spirea, yellow-flowered winter jasmine, flowering almond, flowering quince, winter honeysuckle and cornelian cherry, an early tiny yellow-flowered dogwood that has little or no resemblance to the white dogwood of May.

Catkins Decorative
Even the young foliage of trees like red maple, sweet gum, hickory, horse chestnut and redbud and those with catkins, such as alders, birches and poplars, lend themselves to forcing and serve in making graceful arrangements.

Select a day when the temperature is above freezing for cutting the branches. If cut while frozen they are less apt to respond. Immediately after a rain is a good time as this heavy wetting helps the sap to flow more readily. Do it carefully and avoid ruthless slashing of trees and shrubs. By doing a midwinter pruning or thinning job, you will be supplied with sufficient material to fill your needs. Of these, select the best shaped and those of at least finger thickness to furnish enough nourishment for them to develop new growth. Also see that the branches are well budded.

Space Cuttings
For continuous blooms from now until spring it is necessary to cut twigs at different times. The first branches cut will take the longest time to blossom. Those which naturally flower early may be forced quickly, others take longer depending upon the nearness of the normal flowering season.

Immediately after cutting, place the branches in a pail of lukewarm water, or lay them in a tub for about twenty minutes. This preliminary soaking will remove some of the sticky waxy substance which seals the buds.

After soaking, bruise and shred about two inches of the stem ends of the branches by pounding with a hammer. This permits them to absorb water more readily. If they are to be used in flower arrangements, it is best to prune and shape them before forcing. Then place in a deep vase of clear water and set in a light window, where they will have a temperature of 55 or 60 degrees. At higher temperature, the flowers lack firmness and seem to fade more quickly. Never place them on or near a radiator.

Effective in Combinations
When the buds are fully open, they may be arranged alone or in combination with other material in interesting containers. Only a few branches are required to make a charming picture; overcrowding detracts from the beauty of the individual blossoms.

Replenish the water as it evaporates, or change it if it becomes cloudy. A few pieces of charcoal will help keep the water sweet and fresh, so that only adding water to replace evaporation becomes necessary.

To help speed blooming, it is well to spray the buds of all shrubs and trees at least once a day, or to submerge them a few minutes.

Pussy willows will last longer if

NEWS FROM THE FARM FRONT

Recent tests prove that the Jersey sweet potato is considerably immune to root-knot nematodes. In fact, plants of this variety growing in soils heavily infested by nematodes remained relatively free from the destructive organisms. On the other hand, the popular Nancy Hall is highly susceptible. Thus the Jersey sweet potato should be used in crop rotations where nematodes would otherwise affect other crops.

The 1946 crops of field beans and dry peas are moderately larger than the 1945 crops but are moving readily into consumer channels at higher prices. Goals for both crops this year call for increased acreages, with dry peas continuing popular in foreign relief feeding.

Beef supplies promise to be large throughout most of 1947 with pork supplies lower because of the small 1946 fall pig crop. Most of the pork reduction will likely occur in the second quarter (April to June). The 1947 spring pig crop is likely to be above the 1946 total.

The 1946 pack of commercially frozen vegetables is estimated at 380 million pounds, as compared with the previous record of 308 million pounds in 1945.

Chicks hatched in early March come into egg production sooner by at least three weeks than those from mid-April hatchings. In other words, the poultryman invests three weeks' less feed to bring early spring pullets to egg production than those who build the winter laying flock from later chicks.

Dietary experiments show that even a small addition of pork vastly improves the protein content of bread. Pork, it is proved, supplies a form of protein largely absent from most cereal flours.

"Use agricultural profits to retire debts, replace worn equipment and build up cash reserves," advises Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, "instead of investing in additional farm land at present high prices."

Two benefits accrue from cutting crooked, deformed and otherwise undesirable types of forest trees for fuel at this time of the year — (1) The wood increases in fuel value after it seasons over the next summer; (2) Remaining trees intended to be kept for timber purposes are the branches are taken from the water and kept in a dry container, although those kept in water to develop roots may be planted outdoors when the weather becomes warm enough for their survival some time later.

greatly enhanced in value by removal of such specimens as are recommended for fuel roles.

Dehydrated guava juice is now marketed commercially to serve as pectin for jellifying other fruits, for making guava jelly and for flavoring fruit nectars, ice cream and candy. It is rich in pectin and vitamin C.

Citrus juices — grapefruit and orange — are at present selling at dietary bargain prices, due to the unusually large supply. Tangerine juice has recently been added to this group of vitamin-rich beverages.

Rice for civilian consumption will be more plentiful during the first quarter of 1947, although the crop is still under government control for allocation.

Commercial fertilizer supplies continue considerably less than demands, with nitrogen heading the scarce list. Farmers and gardeners are urged to place their fertilizer orders with local dealers at once to expedite shipment and free manufacturers from customary spring and early summer bottle-necks.

About Early Vegetable Growing

Early vegetables are grown mainly from plants started under glass. This applies chiefly to early celery, cabbage, broccoli, eggplant, cantaloupes, cucumbers, watermelons, peppers and tomatoes. Peas, lettuce (leaf varieties), radishes, turnips, spinach, carrots, salsify and several other vegetables are started where they are to grow.

In the latitude of southern Michigan, which may be applied to this area with perhaps a little variation, due to the more mountainous conditions, early celery is started under glass January 25 to February 10; cabbage and broccoli January 25 to February 15; eggplant March 15 to April 1; cantaloupes and cucumbers April 21 to May 1; peppers

March 15 to April 1; tomatoes March 15 to April 1; and watermelons April 15 to May 1.

Such seedlings as cantaloupes, cucumbers and watermelons, which do not permit transplanting by ordinary methods, are grown in plant bands which facilitate later transference to the growing sites without disturbing the roots.

Celery, cabbage, broccoli, eggplant, pepper and tomato plants are started in seedflats and the tiny seedlings are then shifted to individual pots and bands and kept growing under glass (in coldframes) until soil and weather conditions permit their transplanting to outdoor locations.

Celery, cabbage and broccoli plants are not injured by light frosts after final transplanting. Egg plant and pepper plants are semi-tropical in their demands and should not be moved to outdoor environments until the soil and weather are warm. Of course, tomato plants are extremely tender.

Seed of cabbage should be disinfected by the hot-water method before sowing in order to eliminate black-leg and black rot dangers.

Pepper, eggplant, tomato, cucumber and cantaloupe seed should be treated by the mercuric chloride (corrosive sublimate) method to prevent seed-borne diseases affecting these vegetables. There are variations in the particular methods of treating these seeds which growers should learn before starting time.

In most cases seedflat and cold-frame and pot and band soils should be sterilized before using to insure freedom from soilborne diseases.

Small gardeners may wisely purchase plants from commercial sources rather than go to the expense and trouble of building and operating hotbeds. However, even small gardeners usually find a cold-frame profitably useful.

Another excellent practice for smaller garden operators and farmers with normal farm gardeners is neighborhood cooperation. One grower is authorized to grow certain kinds of plants and the others pay him for their plant needs on a pre-determined basis to cover his labor and material expenses.

Seed flats may be used in sunny windows, in sunny coldframes or manure-heated hotbeds. In most cases seedlings shifted to individual pots or bands may be further developed to final transplanting size in coldframes.

Gardeners with any questions on methods and practices involved in starting early vegetables are urged to write the editor at once. Merely enclose a 3-cent stamp to cover reply postage.

SHOCKING RESULTS

Rockford, Ill., (AP)—The Rev. Peter P. Powder says that if his goats didn't have such strange appetites he would have three goats now instead of two—and two barn instead of none. Mr. Powder discovered one of his two adjoining barns afire, rushed in and saved two of his three goats. The third perished in the flames, which consumed both barns. One of the goats Mr. Powder told firemen, had nibbled the insulation off some wiring, exposing the wire and causing a short circuit which started the fire.

LEGISLATORS TACKLE BUDGET FIGURES TODAY

By MARTIN BRACKBILL

Harrisburg, Jan. 27 (AP)—The task of determining the gap between prospective state income and outgo in the next two years was tackled today by legislative leaders as the 1947 General Assembly convened for its third week of deliberations.

Senate President Weldon B. Heyburn and Speaker Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, acting on a request of Governor Duff, asked both Republican and Democratic legislative chieftains to ascertain the gap between revenues and existing Commonwealth commitments as well as the cost of proposed new state services.

Duff asked the study to clear up public confusion after noting that the state now faces prospects of a $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 deficit in the next fiscal biennium if it merely continues unchanged present functions of government.

Change Deficit Estimate
The governor told newsmen he had revised downward deficit estimate from $120,000,000 on the basis of prospects of a $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 increase in liquor store profits due to higher prices inaugurated January 18 and the end of whiskey rationing.

Profits of the state liquor monopoly in the current two years will reach $55,000,000 with current estimates for the next two years running from $86,000,000 to $95,000,000.

Even as lawmakers reconvened, however, the Assembly's school commission took up the job for recommending a plan for increasing salaries of public school teachers.

Suggest Sales Tax
Its executive committee last December reported proposed additional state aid for education may cost as much as $75,000,000 more annually in the next two years if teachers' salaries are boosted substantially.

The committee also suggested a two per cent sales tax or a flat income tax to meet the increased cost after declaring the present revenue set-up was inadequate for the burden.

"We don't want to raise taxes unless it is absolutely necessary," declared Heyburn in advance of the organization of the Legislature's own study of state finances. He said the committee would go into the question thoroughly and report to Governor Duff.

Hospital Grants Omitted

Coincidentally the budget bureau reported preliminary estimates of the deficit were based on rising costs of government—including a 40 per cent increase in pay of state employees since 1941—on the one hand, and prospects of deep slash in corporate net income tax returns due to strikes and other reconversion problems.

No estimates, however, were available on prospective new services such as proposals for expanded mental and public health program, increased aid to colleges to relieve housing, faculty and equipment shortages and an accelerated conservation program.

The preliminary budget figures also left out of account a request by the Pennsylvania Medical Society for increased state grants for state-aided hospitals and the cost of financing a veterans' bonus. The Medical Society last week asked for increased aid for hospitals "even though increased taxes are necessary to provide them."

Watering Rules For Plants Vary

There is a decided variance in the quantity of water required by different house plants. Those in small pots will dry out much quicker than those in large pots. There also is a difference in the quantity of water absorbed by the plants, depending whether they are making any growth or just standing still because it is their natural rest period. If kept in warm rooms they will dry out much quicker than in a cooler place. All these points must be taken into consideration when watering.

As a general rule water should be given only when the plants need it, and that is when the soil surface has become dry. Give plenty then to moisten the soil all the way through without having water collect in the saucer. If some of it runs through pour it out of the saucer within fifteen minutes after it has collected.

Delicate Operation On Eye Is Performed

New York, Jan. 27 (AP)—Dr. Donald W. Bogart, famed specialist who used a new technique to perform a delicate eye operation on 58-year-old Edward L. Gibson, Pine Grove, Pa., described his patient's condition as good today but added that it was too early to determine if Gibson's sight would be restored.

Dr. Bogart performed the operation, to correct detachment of the retina, Friday. He said bandages probably would not be removed for about five days and that it would be much longer before final results were learned. Gibson, a carpenter, lost his sight 19 years ago.

DANCE ON THE DESERT

Chapter 25

Eileen's note was on Bert's dresser in his room, as he somehow felt it would be. He tore the envelope open, relieved and yet annoyed, too, at the single line of explanation: "They want me to come back to the office, so I'm driving back to Los Angeles with Mr. Halliday tonight."

Eileen.
Tight-lipped, he handed the letter to his mother, who had quietly followed him to his room, when the last guest had departed and the doors were locked.

She read it and for a long moment she said nothing.

"Funny that she didn't say anything—bid us all goodbye, at least," she said, with a puzzled expression.

"Didn't Mr. Halliday say anything about it either—before he left?"
"No—not about going together. He did say that Eileen went to Palm Springs this afternoon to send a telegram. This must have been it."

"They just quietly planned the thing together, then?"
Mother and son looked at each other silently. They were thinking the same thing.

But, of course, Mr. Halliday wasn't really interested in Eileen. How could he be? Why, he was more than twice her age. He was merely driving her back home, accommodating her. But, if there wasn't anything more to it than that, why hadn't either of them come right out in the open?

Suddenly Eileen's deception infuriated him.

"Just goes to show, you never can depend on anybody. You think you know a person, understand them, and you haven't got the faintest idea of what goes on inside their minds."

"You don't suppose what happened today—about Gloria—had anything to do with it," his mother asked thoughtfully.

"Why, that had nothing to do with Eileen. She wasn't even around."

But suddenly it struck him that it might be the answer. Eileen had gone to her room after luncheon. She must have heard the racket in his office with Blackie Davis. The boys had come running to see what it was all about. Had Eileen come, too—when the boys had ushered Blackie to the door when Gloria had broken down and wept upon his shoulder?

"Well, if she wants to pick up and go away like this, without giving a person a chance to explain things—"

His mother looked at though she understood what he was thinking.

"Well, goodnight, son. Get a good night's rest. Things will look different in the morning."

But Bert couldn't rest. He lay there, wide awake, thinking.

Eddy had reasoned with him sensibly: "Well, of course, Eileen has her apartment to keep up, in Los Angeles. Naturally she feels more secure, with her old job and a regular income. After all, we really aren't established here yet. And she certainly did a lot to come down here and get us started."

"But to let me down like this—without even saying goodbye."

Eddy had given him a funny look. "Maybe she doesn't figure that she has—not with Gloria here to sing."

Eddy had got into bed then and turned out the light. He was lying there, across the room now, breathing regularly.

"Well, thank goodness for Gloria's loyalty, anyway," Bert thought. She had certainly stood up to Blackie Davis—told him where to get off at. There couldn't be any question but that she'd rather be there at The Hacienda with his band—even on speculation, this way—that at the smart Oasis, with Blackie Davis. He still couldn't understand why, but it was certainly a consolation.

He plumped up his pillow, changed his position. But sleep wouldn't come. His thoughts went around in another circle.

Tomorrow Eileen would be in Los Angeles, would see his younger brother Paul, who was in love with her. He had actually tried to throw them together, when the army doctor had ordered him to the desert for his questionable lung—and because, unlike Paul, he then had no financial prospects. Well, now they'd be together. Perhaps after close association with him down here Eileen would decide Paul was her best bet after all.

But the thought of Mr. Halliday persisted. Those older men certainly had charm, finesse—a gallantry with women. Why, weren't all the ladies at the Maryland Club simply gaga over him? Hadn't even his own mother lost her heart?

"Oh, hell!" He must get his thoughts off this dizzy merry-go-round and get some sleep. The desert dawn was brightening his window.

"Eileen was the one to quit," he thought with wounded pride and stubborn logic. "Okay, then she'd have to be the one to make the first move to straighten things out"—if she ever did!

Chapter 26

Several days went by—and nights. Mr. Halliday had sent a postcard to Bert's mother, but Eileen had not been heard from.

Considerately, the boys refrained from mentioning her name. And Charlie Morrison, the sax player, had cleverly stepped into the entertainment gap left by her departure. The lad had a voice of sorts and was definitely a comedian. His ad lib line of patter kept people in stitches.

The band had received its first week's pay and there was enough to guarantee to Gloria the amount that she had fixed as salary. Business was good, Bert's health was good—the Palm Springs doctor assured him, after x-rays, that his lung was clearing up and he had put his cane away in the clothes closet now, for good. He wouldn't, he promised himself, worry about anything else.

But he soon had plenty to worry about, when Mr. O'Malley, brother-in-law to the owner of The Hacienda, drove up in his car a few days later.

The heavy-set, easy-going real estate man was perspiring, as usual, but today there was a peculiar air of urgency about him. Without any hedging, he dropped his bombshell.

"I had an offer to sell The Hacienda, Bert. Some man from Chicago's interested in buying it."

"Buy this place?" Bert exclaimed aghast. "When we've sunk everything we have into it?"

"It does come rather sudden—out of a clear sky. Of course, if you boys could take it over, I'd much rather sell to you."

"How much are you offered?" Eddy shot a quick look at O'Malley, as though suspecting that he might be trying to force their hand.

But he answered promptly. "Thirty-five thousand dollars. Twenty thousand cash and a five-year mortgage. Of course, that's less than the original cost—"

But more money, Bert knew, than they could ever dream of raising among them. "And we haven't even got a lease!"

The boys looked at each other dismally. What trusting fools they'd been to do everything on faith, with no security: renovating a burned-out place with their own money—and Toney's; bringing the orchestra down from Los Angeles, where they had sure bookings.

"They'd done all the work, built up a business. Now somebody else saw the possibilities and wanted to buy it over their heads."

"Well, it sounds like Taps for all of us," Bert said despondently.

"Of course, I'm honor-bound to pass the proposition on to the owner," the real estate man said.

"We're not blaming you, Mr. O'Malley," Bert said. "You did all you could to help us here."

"Well, I'll see that you get something back for what you have put into it." He rose and patted Bert's shoulder. "I'll send my wire off to South America. There's just a chance that nothing will come of it."

The boys stood looking at each other, stunned, defeated, when the real estate man left.

"Somebody must have slipped a jinx on me when I was born," Bert said.

Eddy's eyes narrowed thoughtfully.

"I think I smell a rat," he said. They called Toney and their mother in and gave them the bad news.

Toney exploded, with an Italian oath, "I think somebody around here is playing us false behind our backs."

"Somehow I think maybe Toney's right."

Mrs. McLane looked meaningfully at her sons.

Eddy nodded. "I hate to be an I-told-you-so, Bert, but I had a hunch from the beginning—"

As he spoke, Gloria drove up in her coupe and started into the house.

"You don't mean you actually think—?"

Eddy nodded. "Why not? Her coming here looked funny to me from the beginning."

But certainly Gloria deSylvia looked very far from guilty, or in any way responsible for the impending doom, when she came into the office, bright and cool looking as a daffodil in a smart yellow-and-green outfit. She looked from one face to the other, anxiously.

"I just passed Mr. O'Malley on the road. He hasn't raised the rent, or anything, has he?"

"Worse than that! He just told us somebody wants to buy the place," Eddy shot a quick, searching look at Gloria.

But there could be no doubt: she was genuinely alarmed.

"Buy it—after you've made something out of it? It sounds like a trick, if you ask me."

"Sounds that way to us, too," Bert said. He was honestly glad that Gloria evidently had no connection with their misfortune.

"I really don't get this at all," she said, wrinkling her forehead in a frown. "Why should anybody from Chicago suddenly want it?"

"Obviously for the same reason we do—" Bert began, but Gloria cut him short.

"Somehow this thing doesn't sound on the level. I've got a sneaking little idea—" She turned regret-filled eyes to Bert. "I hope, from the bottom of my heart, Bert, that I haven't caused you any trouble."

Chapter 27

Gloria had taken it upon herself to call on the real estate man before she drove out to The Hacienda the next day.

"There really is a man from Chicago," she reported. "A rich-looking smoothy. I saw him in O'Malley's office. He says he wants to live here—put the place back the way it was before."

The news didn't lessen the impending tragedy, but somehow they all felt a little better that they hadn't been tricked.

They had decided to say nothing to the other members of the band until they heard again from Mr. O'Malley. The real estate man drove out again at the end of the week.

They knew from his expression that the news was bad. He had had a radiogram from the owner, with instructions to sell.

Though they'd been prepared for it, the news was nevertheless a blow. "I only wish you lads could raise the money yourselves," O'Malley said. "You saw the possibilities here, and you should collect the dividends."

"Well, buying the place is out," Eddy said glumly. "We have no way to raise the money, if we wanted to."

"I've written to a friend who is a banker," Mrs. McLane said, to the boys' surprise. "If anyone could help us he could. But he says the business is too young for such a big investment—it isn't really proved itself yet."

"And he's right," O'Malley agreed reluctantly. "Your place here is a novelty. People come largely out of curiosity. There's never any telling when business might suddenly fall off."

And that was the truth. Bert knew that Gloria deSylvia was mainly responsible for their success. She was the drawing card, regardless of the food and other fun. If she were ever to leave them, most of their business probably would, too. He asked, "When do we have to vacate Mr. O'Malley?"

"Not for four months," the real estate man said. "I've made that an express condition of the sale. They wanted to just reimburse you for the money you'd put in, but I said that wasn't good enough." He turned to Bert, with a fatherly expression. "You came down to the desert for six months, didn't you, son? Well, this four-months' clause will see you through. And give you a chance to make a little money before you pull out, too."

"Well, that's certainly swell of you, Mr. O'Malley." He gave the older man his hand, ashamed of his suspicion that he had been against them.

"You've certainly been a real friend," Eddy said. "If we pull out with any money at all, we'll surely owe it all to your consideration."

"Anything can happen in four months," Toney said, optimistically. "Even somebody like Xavier Cugat could maybe hear the Alvarado Merry Makers and put you all on easy street."

"And the chief of the Waldorf Astoria might come to Palm Springs and taste your cooking, Toney, and put you on Park Avenue," Bert said.

Optimism took away a little of the sting. They all felt better about things when the real estate man left. Still Bert found himself wishing that Eileen were here to comfort him, and Mr. Halliday, to talk things over.

His mother said, philosophically, "What's to be, will be, boys. Everything really happens for the best, whether we can see it at the time or not."

Strangely, though, Gloria was more upset about things than any of them. "Somehow I still seem to smell a rat."

And the rat, it soon developed, was Blackie Davis, as she had suspected. He drove out in his yellow roadster a few weeks later, stalked into the office, and triumphantly flashed a legal-looking document under Bert's nose.

"You're moving out of here, fellow—pronto!"

Bert felt himself get hot under the collar.

"Says who?" he demanded seething.

"This paper happens to be a transfer of deed," Blackie said insolently. "The dump now belongs to me."

"So the Chicago man was just a stooge for you? You're the one who wants the property?"

"Right! And I want it damn quick, too. I've got to hand it to you, at that. You've proved a good singer can draw business anywhere."

Bert let that pass. He knew the man was right.

"There's a four months' tenancy clause," Bert told him. "You can move into the place in four months, and not a day before."

"Not in this there isn't any clause," Blackie Davis crowed, spreading the document before him. "I take possession here the first of the month, when your so-called 'rent' is up."

"You're doing what?" Gloria's voice sounded like a pistol shot.

He flashed the deed before her. "The Hacienda's mine, my pet—lock, stock, and barrel."

"So this is your revenge?" Shame mingled with her contempt. "I

SAYS ENGLAND IS UNABLE TO PAY WAR DEBT

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Lord Woolton, Britain's war-time food minister, says John Bull has no chance of repaying the $3,750,000,000 American loan, and L. S. Amery, another former cabinet minister, declares John can't pay his way in a "world of open cut-throat competition," after the elimination of the imperial trade preference system—a condition of the loan.

Those are gloomy predictions—and it's only fair to note that both the prophets, being conservatives, are opposed to the present labor (Socialist) government. They could, of course, be playing a spot of politics, but whatever way you look at it (and irrespective of whether the loan can be repaid) the grim truth is that John Bull is in the midst of a grave politico-economic crisis.

Face Severe Crisis

We should have heard much more of this emergency but for the fact that it's a characteristic of the Englishman that the more he is hurt the less he talks.

Mother England and her empire are going through a vast metamorphosis. This change was hastened—though not precipitated—by the war. Fate decreed that the Socialists should come to power just after the end of the European conflict and so assume the responsibility for handling this crisis.

Britons of all political leanings, by and large, have given Prime Minister Attlee and his government full support—for new policies were being tried out and the welfare of the country, as well as that of the government, was at stake. Even the sweeping nationalization projects, whose workability still has to be demonstrated, haven't deprived the government of its support.

Public Is Patient

The public has been amazingly patient as the crisis has tightened. Food rationing on the whole is more severe than during the war and is expected to last for two or three years longer. There is a great shortage of clothing and other necessities. Coal is scarce both for the fireplaces of England and for the furnaces of industry. Even if there were coal enough for manufacture, raw materials would be lacking. And if both coal and raw materials were available, industry still would be in a bad way because Britain lacks the manpower to run her factories.

Earlier this week the Attlee government appealed to labor and employers alike to work harder for recovery. The government is contemplating the importation of Polish female workers from among the displaced people on the continent, and some hundreds of Polish miners who were in England are to be employed.

Should have guessed it."

"Yeh." He smiled at her a little shyly, yet triumphantly. "This is my punch in the jaw."

"It's a poisonous revenge, Blackie." Her eyes were boring into him, as though looking for some streak of good in all his meanness. "Just because I quit you, you've got to do a man out of his business—do me out of a job."

He kept looking at her hungrily, not only with a physical longing but, it seemed to Bert, with a deeper and more lasting need. He said almost caressingly, "You won't have to worry about your job, honey. You go along with the property."

Gloria's ringed hand lifted. It struck, with a resounding smack, across Blackie Davis' mouth.

Chapter 28

Bert called the other boys in. It wasn't easy to tell them, after their game gamble, that the two-timing Blackie Davis had just pulled all the props from under them. He stood up before them, let them have it, straight.

"I guess it's 'lights out' for us, fellows. That guy who just left here is moving in."

"Moving in here?"
"You mean Blackie Davis?"

"The guy we booted off the place a couple weeks ago?"

Bert said, thin-lipped, "Yeh, Blackie Davis. He double-crossed us beautifully. That Chicago man was just a dummy, to buy this property—pull the wool over Mr. O'Malley's eyes. The stooge has just turned the property over to Davis."

"Well—the low down—Say, why didn't I break that guy's neck when we had him here?" Carolina said. The others looked at each other, sunk.

"Well, you've got four months' grace, anyway," Roy said philosophically. "Maybe you can clean up a little money in that time."

"That's the hard part, fellas. That four-month clause was left out in the transfer."

"That guy was out to get our hides from the moment Gloria deSylvia quit him and came with us," Eddy said darkly. "I felt it in my bones."

"You were right," Bert admitted. "I should have listened to you."

"I kept telling you this whole proposition was no good from the beginning," Pete Scanlon said disagreeably.

That was all Bert needed to raise his fighting spirit.

"Well, we're not licked yet! There must be some way to block that double-crosser. If Gloria could stand up to him right now and slap his face the way she did—we can pull a couple of punches on him, too." His fist banged on the table. Suddenly, he had hit on a bright idea. He went to the door, calling, "Hey Gloria! Come in here a minute, will you?"

Pete Scanlon grinned with smug satisfaction. "You're a little late, there, Bert. She just beat it down the road in her coupe—after her patent-leather sweetie."

Bert looked as though he had been struck below the belt.

"What do you do to your women, anyway, kid?" Pete leered. "That's the second one's run out on you down here."

"One more crack out of you, and you'll be running out of here with a black eye," Bert said, white with anger. He stalked out of the room, flung into the car and drove, at racing speed, to Palm Springs.

He wasn't following Gloria deSylvia, though. He was going to have things out with Dan O'Malley.

"So, it was a racket!" he accused, storming into the real estate man's office. "A pretty little frameup to sell us out to your friend Blackie Davis!"

The big man's face was splashed with red. "Believe me, son, I didn't have the faintest idea Davis was at the bottom of this. On my oath," he added, as Bert glared skeptically. "I was getting ready to call you up this minute."

"Well, you saved yourself a nickel," Bert snapped.

"I've been sitting here trying to dope out something we could beat that rascal at his own trickery."

"Yeh?" Bert temporized. "Well, what's on your mind, O'Malley?"

The real estate man smiled, vastly relieved. "Sit down her and cool off, son. Maybe between us we can figure something out. I wouldn't have had this happen for the world, believe me."

As he said that he had again been suspicious of the kindly old man, Bert sat down, and listened.

A half hour later, Mr. O'Malley jammed on his Panama hat. He and Bert were off to look at two empty properties in Palm Springs.

"I know both the owners well," O'Malley said. "I'm sure we can make a deal."

One was a big corner place in a good location. Bert could see its possibilities at a glance. But Mr. Hill, the owner, told them, regretfully, "I'm very sorry, Dan. But somebody paid me a deposit on that rental, less than fifteen minutes ago."

Bert looked at O'Malley. "Come on, let's go see the other one!"

But there, to their dismay, they found an option had just been given on the place.

"Not half an hour ago," the owner said.

Now, Bert looked really sunk. "I guess we're licked, Mr. O'Malley. But thanks for trying, anyway." He bade the real estate man goodbye and got into his car.

If he had been a drinker, he would have marched up to a bar and got thoroughly drunk. As it was, he slumped down under an umbrella at an outdoor eating place and ordered some black coffee. Bit-

SAY HOUSING SHORTAGE TO BE OVER SOON

By STERLIN F. GREEN

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP)—With industry spokesmen predicting the housing shortage will be whipped this year, a group of Senate Republicans offered a higher-rent measure as one way to speed the flicking.

Extension of rent control to the end of 1947 with a 15 per cent increase in rent ceilings was proposed by Senator Hawkes (N.J.) and three GOP colleagues—McCarthy (Wis.), Cain (Wash.), and Malone (Nev.). Hawkes said the proposal was being prepared for introduction shortly.

Under the Senators' plan no ceiling would apply on newly-built houses or accommodations which have not been rented in the past year.

Industry On Own

The latter provision, Hawkes predicted to reporters, would induce many people to rent living quarters in their homes which they have hesitated to open up "because they didn't want to bother with the red tape of government control."

Hawkes' announcement capped a week-end in which national housing administrator Ramond M. Foley and housing expediter Frank R. Creedon, in an official policy state-

Desperate Mother Gets $500 Gifts

Edinboro, Pa., Jan. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Marie Didion, the 51-year-old mother of 12 children who offered to sell her eyes to the highest bidder, had almost $500 today to buy food and comforts after sympathetic newspaper readers filled her mailbox with checks.

Wife of a partially-disabled carpenter, Mrs. Didion said a week ago she would sell one eye now and another at death to aid her family.

Declaring the contributions had restored her faith, she insisted "if I still have to, I won't hesitate to sell my eye, if I can be sure my children will have security and I won't have to go to the poor house when I get older."

Her husband, William, a carpenter, is ill and cannot work. Mrs. Didion said she was able to work herself until she underwent a recent operation. She declared she wanted to give her younger children "proper food and a good home." Her older children are married but could not assist her because they have big families.

ment, declared that private industry is "practically on its own again" and must shoulder the major responsibility of meeting the housing shortage.

Private industry spokesmen gave quick response. In statements and interviews, they forecast that the emergency will end this year and that a "buyers' market" will replace current inflated prices on existing houses.

York Springs

York Springs—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Weidner, York, announce the recent birth of a daughter at the hospital. Both parents are former residents of this section, she the former Miss Jean Bosserman, and he a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Weidner.

John Paxton, who has been seriously ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ralph Davis, this section, is reported unimproved.

Mrs. Charles Menges entertained fellow members of the local WCTU chapter at her home during the week.

Mrs. Murray Jacobs was hostess to the Willing Workers' class of the local Lutheran church on Tuesday evening.

A soup and bake sale will be conducted this afternoon at the local Methodist church rooms by the Wesleyan Service Guild of the church. The Guild was organized several weeks ago.

Patchogue, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP)—Patsy Andrisani, veterans administration employee in Northport, N. Y., and the girl he met while a serviceman, Miss Gwen Rose of Colchester, England, are continuing their courtship with a pair of amateur radio operators assisting.

His cousin, Michael Maletta, made radio contact from here with Denis Heightman of Clacton-on-the-sea, England, not far from Miss Rose's home.

"He's trying to fix it," Maletta says, "so she can come over here and they can get married."

Don Peebles Orchestra To Play For Party

Don Peebles' all-veteran dance orchestra from Harrisburg will provide the music for the Polo Party to be held at the Hotel Gettysburg Thursday evening. Included in the 12-piece orchestra are four Adams county musicians: Harry S. Oyler, drums; Donald L. Carver, saxophone and clarinet; and C. Wayne Murray, sax and clarinet, all of Gettysburg, and William A. Sanders, East Berlin, who plays the trumpet and trombone.

The Peebles orchestra formerly toured the nation from coast to coast co-starred with Sally Rand. They have broadcast over national radio hookups and are the only orchestra carrying a portable organ.

SUICIDE'S LEAP INJURES WOMAN

New York, Jan. 27 (AP)—David H. Gordon, Jr., 28, leaped to his death yesterday from the 88th floor of the Empire State building and his hurtling body struck and injured seriously a woman passerby on the sidewalk below.

The pedestrian, Mrs. Mervin S.

Coover, 51, of Ames, Iowa, wife of the head of the electrical engineering department at Iowa State college, remained in a critical condition today. Attendants said she suffered neck and arm injuries and abrasions.

Police said Gordon made the 1,000-foot leap from the world's tallest building after telling Chief Petty Officer James Lambert, another visitor on the observation floor, "I'm going to jump." Lambert, unable to dissuade Gordon, called to two guards who rushed toward Gordon but missed by inches being able to grab him.

Max Furman, an assistant state attorney general, identified Gordon as his nephew and said he had been "depressed" since his release from the army on a medical discharge a year ago.

New York, Jan. 27 (AP)—Although Babe Ruth spent a "poor day" yesterday, his condition began to improve early today, said attendants at the hospital where the former home run king underwent a neck operation January 6.

CARRIER SEEKS TO LAUNCH SIX POLAR PLANES

By Alton L. Blakeslee

Little America, Jan. 26 (Delayed)

(AP)—The carrier Philippine Sea headed southwesterly out of the ice pack late today, seeking more favorable weather for launching six big transport planes for Polar exploration flights.

With Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, expedition commander, flying in the lead plane, the transports are ready for a quick take-off on a 600-mile hop to this base and its hastily built airstrip in the snow. Each transport will carry five men.

The launching was scheduled for early Sunday, but bad weather persisted and Rear Adm. Richard H. Cruzen, task force commander here, said late today that prospects do not look good for takeoffs soon.

Special Equipment

The carrier, east of Scott Island, reported low ceiling and poor visibility with a light drizzle or snow forecast for later tonight. However, at this base where flying weather has been perfect for three days, the forecast was "good to average" for tonight and early Monday.

Although every piece of non-essential equipment has been discarded, the planes still carried several thousand pounds of weight in excess of that normally carried by commercial transports.

They were equipped with wheels and jets to facilitate the carrier launching. Heavy skis were fixed to undercarriages to permit landing on the snow strip. Only a few inches above the carrier deck, the skis added to the takeoff hazards.

Important Progress

The planes will operate from this base, when weather permits, over a 750-mile semi-circular area. They will take photographs and, using airborne magnetic detectors, try to determine the geology under the ice cap. The detectors show changes in terrestrial magnetism.

Byrd, describing the flight plan a "most important experiment" said: "This expedition has encountered extraordinarily severe weather, hazardous flying conditions and difficult ice formation. It nevertheless has overcome major obstacles and already has made notable progress in discovery and exploration."

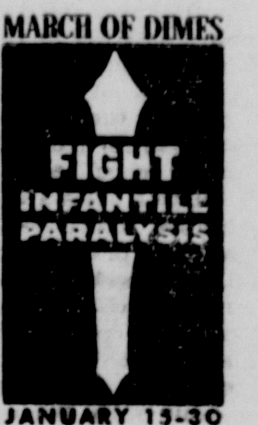

After launching the planes and transferring mail and supplies, the Philippine Sea will return to the United States. The Icebreaker Northwind, which left the central group in Little America, was ordered to return promptly to the base where hundreds in the expedition are eagerly awaiting their first mail from home.

It is estimated that the United States will export 400,000,000 bushels of grain and grain products of 1946.

Most animal oils used commercially are obtained from fish and marine mammals.

Gustaf, becomes second in line for the throne.

Surviving the prince are his son, four daughters and a wife, the Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. He was the step-son of Princess Louise, English-born sister of Adm. Louis Mountbatten. Louis G. Dreyfus, the American minister was among the many diplomats who made appointments at the palace to express their sympathy.

Miss Moore was born in Slabtown, near Del Rio, Tenn. The family moved to Jellico when she was five. Slim, blonde and comely, she was known as the "glamour girl" of the opera. She made her debut in musical comedy and starred in several motion pictures, but her first love was grand opera.

Entertained GIs

During the war she sang for troops here and abroad, paying her own expenses and sacrificing many concert engagements.

Miss Moore's regular accompanist, Ivor Newton, said in London last night that "but for the grace of God" he would have been aboard the death plane. The singer had asked him to join her in Amsterdam for the trip to Copenhagen and Stockholm, but he had been unable to get away because of previous engagements.

CAPONE DIED
BROKE ASSERTS
HIS ATTORNEY

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP)—The body of Al Capone, once fabulously wealthy Chicago gang leader whose attorney said he died broke, lay in a mortuary here today, waiting completion of plans for the funeral here later this week.

Dr. Kenneth Phillips, who attended Capone for several years and was with the 48-year-old ex-mobster when he died in his 25-room villa on nearby Palm Island Saturday, said the final rites would be held here. Other information, he added, must come from the family.

Close relatives visited the funeral home last night but left without revealing any further plans.

In Los Angeles, Capone's attorney, Abraham Teitelbaum, said as far as he knew "Al left no will and no money." The lawyer said members of Capone's family had supported him in recent years, and the villa was "mortgaged to the hilt."

Had $20 Million
Federal officials once estimated Capone's fortune at $20,000,000, but Teitelbaum said, "Al still owed the government money when he died."

Capone suffered a stroke at 4 a. m. last Tuesday but rallied and for a time it was believed he might recover. Pneumonia developed and the end came suddenly.

The former gangster was born in Naples, Italy, and grew up in New York. He went to Chicago in 1919 and during the roaring '20's became a czar of the underworld. His gang handled an estimated $100,000,000 during his reign.

After serving seven and a half years in federal prisons for violating income tax laws, he retired to his home here, his empire gone and his health broken.

MAN KILLED IN CRASH OF CAR

Chambersburg, Pa., Jan. 27 (AP)—An argument that started in an automobile was reported by state police today to have brought death to one man, injury to another, and arrest for the third.

Pvt. Charles N. Croft, of the state police, said Irvin C. Hardscock, 59, father of eight children, was killed when the car driven by his brother-in-law, Lester Samuel Rhone, crashed into a tree Saturday night. Hardscock was thrown out, landing on his head on the macadam highway.

Another brother-in-law, John Rhone, was also thrown out when the car careened across the road after striking the tree, and hit a bank. John Rhone was taken to the Chambersburg hospital with a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Croft said Lester Samuel Rhone was arrested on charges of drunken driving, and involuntary manslaughter. He was arraigned before Magistrate Shirley Zorger and held under $1,500 bail to await the outcome of his brother's injuries.

32 Others Killed

(By The Associated Press)
Airplane crashes at home and abroad over the week-end caused the deaths of 54 persons, including the American soprano Grace Moore and Sweden's Prince Gustaf Adolf. In China, search planes were sent out today to find a Chinese National Aviation Corp. passenger plane missing since Monday on a flight from Canton to Chungking. The Chinese Central News Agency once reported the plane had been found, with 18 aboard dead, but later said the report was incorrect, based on a mistranslation of a coded message from its Chungking bureau.

The four crew members were killed and a $2,000,000 cargo of gold bullion and coins was scattered when another plane crashed into a peak on the island of Hong Kong, off the China coast.

On Saturday, 12 persons died in a crash at London's Croydon airport.

Taneytown Crash
In the United States, five men were killed when a seven-place private plane carrying them from a district sales managers' meeting, of the U. S. Machine Corp., at Lebanon, Ind., crashed near Rensselaer, Ind.

Two persons were killed in each of four other plane accidents, near Tipton, Okla., Darlington, Wis., Taneytown, Md., and Westmoreland, Kas.

POTTERS FIGHT
TARIFF CHANGES

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP)—America's pottery industry renewed today its fight against tariff changes that might increase competition from abroad.

Employers and workers were here to argue the case before a government committee gathering information looking toward new trade agreements.

The industry's big union, the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, was represented by James Duffy of East Liverpool, Ohio. With him was Joseph M. Wells of Newell, W. Va., president of the United States Potters' Association.

Already in Washington for wage conferences, the two men argued that neither American workers nor manufacturers can compete with articles from foreign countries with lower wages and operating costs.

They requested the committee to keep the tariff on pottery high enough to give domestic producers at least an even break in the home market.

A statement by the Vitrified China Association said that the manufacture of ceramics centers in small communities "making it a force for stability and security."

YEGGMEN FAIL

Philadelphia, (AP)—Burglars figuratively "laid" dozens of eggs in an unsuccessful attempt to crack a meat store safe.

Lacking drills, the burglars attacked the strongbox with meat cleavers but were able only to knock off the safe's combination. They left after breaking several dozen eggs and scattering them on the floor.

APE BOY IS PLEASED WITH HIS NEW FACE

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 27 (AP) Happy because plastic surgery has transformed his congenital ape-like facial features to near normal, 16-year-old David Ruge took a new outlook on life today.

The Chicago boy whose ugly face led him into crime was released as an out-patient Sunday from Blodgett hospital, where he underwent an extensive operation January 15. Accompanied by relatives, he went to a nearby town for further recovery, which his doctor estimated would take several weeks.

While the boy still was hidden from public view, news of his recovery and changed attitude came from Dr. Ferris N. Smith, widely recognized plastic surgeon who performed the operation without charge.

Saying he was "very pleased with every bit of this case up to date," Dr. Smith described the youth as "delighted" each time he has seen his face in a mirror during changes of dressings. He also quoted him as saying he wants to return to his job as a machinist in Chicago as soon as possible.

It was there that David was arrested for attempting to extort $5,000 from his employer. Taken into court, he pleaded guilty, but explained he wanted the money to finance a facial operation. His plea won him leniency from the court and aroused widespread sympathy, including numerous offers of financial help.

Dr. Smith said the boy's facial muscles and bones at birth gave him a "perpetual scowl of a particularly ferocious nature" and made him the butt of nicknames like "ape boy," "monkey face" and other taunts from his schoolmates.

Whisky Rationing
In Discard Today

Harrisburg, Jan. 27 (AP)—Another piece of wartime red tape went into the discard today—whisky rationing in Pennsylvania.

The state Liquor Control Board ended three years of whisky rationing on Saturday at its 575 state liquor stores. Customers today could buy a variety of blends without restrictions.

AWFUL RHEUMATIC
BODY IN 8 HOURS

"For years I had rheumatic pains in the muscles of my shoulders, legs and ankles, which finally got so stiff, sore and painful that when I walked I would flinch with agony. I got Rhu-Aid and started taking it, and the rheumatic pains began leaving my body in eight hours. Now the pains are gone from my muscles entirely. I feel like some other person, and I praise Rhu-Aid to the sky. This is a genuine testimonial from a man living right here in this vicinity."

Rhu-Aid is the new liquid formula containing three valuable medicinal ingredients. These Three Great Medicines, all blended into one, go right to the very cause of rheumatic and neuritis aches and pains. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get Rhu-Aid. Sold by all drug stores here in Gettysburg.

the board retained control of distribution of still-scarce Scotch, Canadian, Irish and bottled-in-bond whiskies.

Those brands will be placed on sale at designated days with each customer limited to one bottle.

PA. VETERANS PREPARE STATE BONUS PROGRAM

Harrisburg, Jan. 27 (AP)—Representatives of Pennsylvania's war veterans' organizations came to the state capital today to lay out a program for a bonus for the Commonwealth's 1,200,000 veterans.

The conference was called in line with a suggestion by Governor Duff in his inaugural address last week. The new chief executive said that the Republican party, which also controls both branches of the general assembly, would redeem its campaign pledge for "a fair and liberal bonus," but added:

"The terms and conditions of the bonus, in the final analysis, should be suggested by the veterans themselves after the most careful and patriotic deliberation."

Rankin Heads Committee
State Commander Clyde E. Rankin, of the American Legion, who heads a joint bonus committee of five veterans organizations called the conference after coming out himself for a length-of-service bonus ranging from $500 or $700 to be financed by a 30-year bond issue of $300,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Other organizations invited to the conference include the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, Jewish War Veterans and American Veterans of World War Two.

Under Rankin's plan, veterans and the next of kin of war casualties will receive $10 a month for domestic service and $15 monthly for overseas service.

Payments in 1950
Should the bonus be financed by a bond issue payments could not begin at least until 1950 since approval by two sessions of the legislature and a state-wide referendum vote would be necessary to make it effective.

A $50,000,000 bond issue was authorized in 1933 for a bonus for veterans of the first world war, calling for maximum payments of $200 at the rate of $10 for each month of war service. Payments from that bonus totaled $44,720,000 on January 1.

Opening the bonus question in the assembly, Rep. David H. Weiss (D-Westmoreland) already has introduced a proposed constitutional amendment for a $500,000,000 bond issue for the purpose.

OPERATION FRIGID
Endicott, N. Y. (AP)—Skating enthusiast Joseph Sosensko, 39, thinks he proved skating keeps a man in top form by bicycling 35 miles on icy roads in two hours and 45 minutes.

But skiler William Gerdey, also 39, whom Sosensko outlasted in the test the two arranged to decide which sport was the better conditioner, still stands by skiing.

Gerdey blames his bicycle's condition for his failure.

Cites Increase In Cost Of Government

Harrisburg, Jan. 27 (AP)—The cost of operating the state government has risen more than 25 per cent in the past decade, the Pennsylvania Economy League, Inc., a non-partisan research agency, reported.

Listing the present annual cost as $370,000,000, the league declared "this is more than $100,000,000 above the annual cost 10 years ago, and more than double the 1929-31 figure."

"Expenditures for the social welfare activities—public assistance, welfare, and public health—have increased tremendously over pre-depression years, but have fallen off since 1941," the league said in a pamphlet on state expenditures.

The cost of public instruction has "practically doubled since 1929-31," the league added, "going from $90,000,000 to $180,000,000."

Railroad Worker Hurt At Rock Slide

Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 27 (AP)—William Bey, Pennsylvania railroad carpenter from Altoona, Pa., was in J. C. Blair Memorial hospital here today as the result of injuries suffered in aiding to clear a rock slide and re-track a derailed locomotive.

The locomotive was derailed Saturday in a rock slide in Spruce Creek tunnel, 12 miles west of here. Two crewmen on the Altoona-to-Harrisburg-bound locomotive—A. A. Bruker, engineer, and H. H. Ralston, fireman—were injured.

The members of Columbus' crew received about $2.50 monthly.

January Garden Hints Are Listed

As the days become longer, many house plants begin to show signs of new activity. Weekly applications of small amounts of a complete plant food, will be beneficial to them.

Fuchsias which have been resting may be started into growth this month. Cuttings of this plant may be made this month also to get plants that will bloom this summer.

Save the wood ashes from the fireplace, as they make an excellent garden fertilizer.

How To Force Blooms
Pussywillow and forsythia may be forced from now on. Cut the branches on a frost-free day, place the stems in cool water and let them stand in a cool place until they are ready to open. Remove the husks which cover the buds of the pussywillows.

Pruning of fruit trees can be done any time when the weather is mild.

Remove the egg masses of the tent caterpillars found on wild cherry, apple and other trees.

The health of house plants depends on satisfactory room temperature but also on air humidity. It is beneficial to the plants if large pans of water are placed between the pots.

Protection Needed
Protect rhododendron and boxwood from the warming rays of the sun with burlap screens fastened to stakes.

Study the new seed and nursery catalogues carefully and start garden plans for the coming season.

Read a few garden books.

Many house plants will need repotting at this time. In repotting keep in mind that plants with fine fibrous roots should be potted firmly and those with thick fleshy roots should be handled less severely.

Examine dahila tubers for signs of damping off and rot.

South Dakota has a town named "White Owl" and Michigan one named "White Pigeon."

The population of Jerusalem is about 150,000.

American citizenship was granted to the Puerto Ricans in 1917.

bered seeing President Abraham Lincoln riding past her home on Baltimore street to deliver his immortal address at the National cemetery dedication.

Born October 18, 1944, near town on the Baltimore pike, she later moved to Gettysburg and until 1942 lived alone at the Homan property on the corner of Baltimore and South streets. Since 1942 however, she has been cared for by others.

Here During Battle

She and her family moved to Gettysburg during the Civil War battle here, with her father deciding that it would be safer in the town than in the country. They stayed at what is now the Battlefield hotel and upon their return to their home found it "dirty, but unhurt" she recalled.

For many years her ambition was to live to be one hundred years of age. After she had passed that age she told friends her ambitions were filled.

Most of her family scattered into the far west with brothers and sisters living in Nevada, Colorado and other western states. Most of them preceded her in death. It was not immediately known whether any of her brothers and sisters still survived.

Her death leaves only one countess over 100 years of age, George W. Krug, the county's last Civil War veteran, who was 100 in May 1946.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Staley had as dinner guests Sunday at their home on Buford avenue Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Huntsberger and Mrs. Alice Schlosser, Shepherdstown.
